SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER III—The Major attends a great fete and saves the "Lady of the Blended Rose" from mob. He later meets the girl at a brilliant ball.

CHAPTER IV—Trouble is started over a waltz, and Lawrence is urged by his partner, Mistress Mortimer, (the Lady of the Blended Rose), to make his escape.

CHAPTER V-Lawrence is detected as a spy by Captain Grant of the British army, who agrees to a duel. CHAPTER VI—The duel is stopped by Grant's friends and the spy makes a dash for liberty, swimming a river following a narrow escape.

CHAPTER VII—The Major arrives at the shop of a blacksmith, who is friendly, and knows the Lady of the Blended

There was a click of the lock, and the heavy door swung open. I stood motionless, tempted to spring, yet not daring the venture. Peter backed and I caught a gleam of intelligence in majestically out, and I caught a glimpse of the graybeard, and the black outline of a pistol. Then the door closed, leaving me alone. The little scrap of candle left sputtered feebly, and, after walking across the floor a half-dozen times, striving to gain control of my temper, I blew it out, and crawled into the bunk. There was nothing I could do, but wait for morning; not a sound reached me from without, and, before I realized the possibility, I was fast asleep. I must have slept long and soundly, for when I finally awoke a gleam of justified in an effort at escape, Surely, sun lay the full length of the room, under such conditions, my word of wine gratefully, and and food was upon the table. Queen's Rangers and Hessians, from their uniforms, straggling along on foot, limping, dusty and without arms. These must be the remnant of Delavan's command, released by their guard of partisans, and now wearily seeking refuge. But why were they coming here? Surely this was not the Philadelphia road?

They turned in upon the open lawn in front of the door, and I could plainly distinguish the faces. There could no longer be any doubt but what these There was no positive expression, no were the men we had fought and defeated the evening before. tinguished guest: "Captain Alfred Grant!"

There was an exclamation of surprise, a quick exchange of sentences indistinguishable, although I was sure of Grant's peculiar accent, and the other voice was that of the young light Dragoon lieutenant. Uncertain what best to do I stole toward the door and gripped the knob. This was mured smoothly; "we are only too the only known way out, for I dare proud to have you as our guest at not venture to use the window which Elmhurst. Dragoons in charge of his advance guard. I merely got a glimpse of the fellow as we rode in, and he looked so devilishly like Eric that I asked Delavan who the lad was. He said he had joined at Mount Holly with three men, was going through to Philadel phia with despatches from New York and was only too glad of escort the rest of the way. Being short of officers Delavan gave him charge of the van.'

"Did he recognize you?" "I hardly think so: it was pretty dark, and I was put on guard over the rear wagons. I supposed I would have ample opportunity to learn the truth after it became daylight." "But you believed him to be Eric?" Miss Dora Swango convinced. He and the three men with him bolted and got away. Must have run at the first fire, for the fellows had us completely hemmed in. It was Eric all right, and that is about half MILLINERY the reason why I led my men back here-I wanted to find out if he was hiding about the old place. Is it true you haven't seen him?"

"Quite true; indeed I had no reason to suppose him in the Jerseys at this Grant remained silent, probably not wholly convinced that he was being told the truth, and yet not venturing to state openly his suspicions. However the other said no more, and finally the Ranger felt compelled to answer.

"Of course," he explained rather lamely, "I couldn't altogether blame you for concealing the boy if he had shown up here, but you will realize that as a King's officer I have a serious duty to perform."

"You would apprehend Eric? Would betray him into British hands? Is that your meaning, Captain Grant?" "What else could I do? Don't be unreasonable! Boy as he is, no one in all that crew of ragamuffins has done us greater harm. Again and again he nothing there, as you know. The house has been stripped to a mere Washington information of our plans. How he does it Is the mystery of this department-Howe has personally of fered a thousand pounds for his arrest Surely you know that. Last night thought we had him in our power, bu the very devil seems to protect him from capture, even when luck brings him fairly within our grip." "And so you came here to search fo him?" I could feel the bitter scot in the voice. "In his father's home!" "I certainly did," angrily. "I sha search the house from cellar to garre before I leave."

"But you are on parole." "Damn the parole. What do I can for a pledge given to a band of plur dering outlaws? And what do I car for Eric? He chose for himself, and has no right to expect any mercy from me, and by all the gods, he'll receive none. I half believe that attack las night was his planning, and that nov you have him hidden away here. Nov listen to me! I do not desire to b harsh, but I'm a soldier. My men are not armed, but there are enough ou there to handle the servants bare handed. No one can get out of this house without being seen; I've attend rooms?' "I do. If you had been a little more genial I might have exhibited greater courtesy. But I haven't any use for Eric, and never had. Now you know the truth."

"It merely illustrates more clearly your character." "You are always free enough with your comments. I shall do my duty to the King."

"Very well, sir," and the incensed lieutenant pushed back his chair Then we clearly understand each oth er at last. I am sincerely glad of it. From now on I shall never again be guilty of mistaking you for a friend or a gentleman. No, I have no wish to listen to another word; you have spoken frankly enough, and I understand the situation. GET THESE Money-making Secrets

For $1.00 you can get now not only the FARM JOURNAL for FOUR full years, but also your choice of any one of the famous booklets, "Money-making Secrets," which other people have bought by the HUNDRED THOUSAND. Just note what the information given in one of these booklets, "The Million Egg-Farm," did for Robert Liddle, a clerk of Scranton, Pa.

In May, 1910, Robert bought 2300 day-old chicks. He spent just one week studying the methods now given in this book, -his only preparation for the business. Result—this "greenhorn" raised 95 per cent. of all his chicks, and 1350 of them were pullets. ("Poultry Secrets" tells you this secret.) In less than seven months he was getting 425 eggs daily, and selling them at 58 cents a dozen. His feed cost averaged $4.00 a day, leaving him OVER $17.00 A DAY PROFIT,-and this before all his pullets had begun laying. Isn't "Money-making Secrets" a good name for such booklets?

Read what people say of the other booklets, and of the FARM JOURNAL itself:-

"I find your Egg-Book worth untold dollars," says
Roy Changy, Illinois. "What it tells would take a beginner years to learn."

These booklele are a booklele "I am much pleased with the Butter Book," writes F. J. Dickson, Illinois, "and would like to know how I could secure 300 copies, one for each patron of our creamery."

"Duck Dollars is the best book I ever had on duck-raising," says F. M. WARNOCK, Penna. duck-raising," says F. M. Warnock, Penna.

"If your other booklets contain as much valuable information as the Egg-Book, I would consider them cheap at double the price," says F. W. Mansfrett, New York.

T. F. McCrea, a missionary in China, writes, "I found Garden Gold a great help in my garden this summer. I lost my health in the great familie, trying to save the starring Chinese, and I am trying to g.t it back by getting near to the coll. After a long taught with the Chinese language with the Chinese.

"The FARM JOURNAL beats them all,"

"One year I took another agriculturar pa says N. M. GLADWING Washington, "and it took a whole of to tell what FARM JOURNAL tells in one paragraph." "I was very greatly helped by your garden page," writes Mrs. Joe Lawrence, Saskatchewan. "I was never successful in growing cabbage until last summer, when I tried the Farm Journal way. Now I have more than I need to use."
"Farm Journal way was a regular visitor at my boyhood home," writes Dr. William Davis, New Jersey. When the first copy came, it carried me back ten years, and I felt a boy again. I shall never be without it again—I want home to seem like home. When it arrives, I feel the gladness jump right into me. I begin on the first page and read to my wife until half-past ten, and all through the month I drink of its cream. You must work hard to keep it so rich."
